Today's presentation was by guest speaker David Kassan

Mr. Kassan is an exceptionally talented visual artist. In today's presentation, he showed us many digital examples of his fine work. The picture at the left is a self-portrait in charcoal, copied here from David's website presentations. It is a very good likeness of the artist, but many of us were even more impressed by his paintings in oils. David uses his skills, knowledge and talents to capture his subjects in such exact detail that the final product actually looks very much like a quality photograph. Mr. Kassan prefers to sit and talk directly with the subject before beginning the drawings. That allows the resulting work to not only present an exceptionally well done likeness of the individual, but the painting also becomes a conduit connecting the viewer with the subject in a very realistic way. Any attempt to properly describe Mr. Kassan's work would be futile, and the space available here is not nearly sufficient to show examples of his fine paintings. To get a better understanding of the artist, and to actually see some of his excellent work, you can visit one of his internet sites: <https://www.davidkassan.com/> <https://www.instagram.com/davidkassan/> <https://www.facebook.com/davidkassan/> Thank you very much, David for the wonderful presentation and for your great contributions to the world.

- ◆ Thank you to the Jim Fanning Memorial Trap Shoot Committee members TJ Maloy, Jack Zipper and Rick Reese for putting on another great event. There was food from The Kolache Factory, multiple drawing prizes and the raffle's Grand Prize winner was Jack Zipper. A very fun day for sure.

Michael Melloy was the Top Shooter
